Mission Statement

Our Lady of Mount Carmel Parish is a Christ-centered community in the Roman Catholic tradition. We try to share the Good News of salvation with others. As a diverse community, we value and respect individual differences. As God's people, we gather in the Spirit to pray, to celebrate the sacraments, to teach, to learn, to console, to rejoice, to minister and to renew our faith with one another.

NOTES FROM THE PASTOR/NOTAS DEL PARROCO

Today we are celebrating World Mission Sunday. The mission of evangelizing, of bringing the Good news of Salvation in Christ to people everywhere, has been part of our Church from the very beginning. Within only twenty years of Jesus' death, his missionary followers had managed to spread the Catholic faith throughout the Roman Empire. There was not one major city between Jerusalem and Rome that did not have at least a small Christian community. By the end of the first millennium almost the entire continent of Europe had been Christianized. The evangelizing impulse then received a new energy shortly after Columbus' discovery of the New World in 1492. Catholic missionaries began to travel further and further around the globe, to all parts of Asia, the south Pacific, the Americas and beyond. The result is that today there are over 1.5 billion Roman Catholics in the world. In the middle of the 1600's French Jesuits began to send missionaries to Canada in order to evangelize the Native Americans of that region, the Iroquois, Algonquians, Hurons, and Mohawks. This mission was difficult to say the least as the conditions were very primitive with extremes of temperature and only a few settlements scattered about the huge wilderness of North America. Some of the Indian tribes were traditional enemies, so the interactions with them had to be carried out very sensitively. The Jesuits have always been well-known for their scholarship, and so before leaving Europe the missionaries would prepare themselves by studying the languages and the cultures of the natives. They would then attempt to make contact with the tribes and ask to be heard as they preached the Gospel of Christ. Many of the Huron were converted, as were some within the other tribes. Even so, the missionaries were constantly in danger. Among these missionaries were two French Jesuit priests, Jean de Brébeuf and Isaac Jogues and their eight lay companions all of whose memorial we'll celebrate tomorrow, Monday October 19. We are fortunate to know a good deal about them because they kept spiritual diaries and careful accounts of their travels. Their faith was very strong and they were fully convinced that they could win many souls for Christ, but at the same time there was not one among them who did not expect to suffer torture and probably death for their efforts. Indeed, some of the tribes seemed to specialize in gruesome forms of torture and the eye-witness reports that we have are sickening to read. It's a lesson to all of us who become easily discouraged and quit at the first obstacle. Through the persistence of these brave missionaries, most of the tribes eventually abandoned the worst of their practices and embraced Christianity. The traditional enmity that had for centuries existed between the various tribes was bridged by their newly-acquired Catholic faith and their devotion to the teachings of Jesus. This is the same faith we profess today, a faith that speaks to people everywhere and that will, in the fullness of time, knit the whole world into one.

Domingo
Mundial de las Misiones

Hoy celebramos el Domingo Mundial de las Misiones. La misión de evangelizar, de llevar la Buena Nueva de la salvación en Jesucristo a la gente de todo el mundo, ha sido parte de nuestra Iglesia desde el principio. Dentro de sólo veinte años de la muerte de Jesús, sus seguidores misioneros habían logrado difundir la fe católica en todo el Imperio Romano. No había ciudad importante entre Jerusalén y Roma que no tuviera por lo menos una pequeña comunidad de cristianos. A finales del primer milenio casi todo el continente de Europa había sido cristianizado. El impulso evangelizador luego recibió una nueva energía poco después del descubrimiento del Nuevo Mundo por Cristóbal Colón en 1492. Misioneros católicos comenzaron a viajar a todas las partes de Asia, las Islas Pacíficas, las Américas y más allá. El resultado es que hoy en día hay más de 1.5 millones de católicos en el mundo. Los jesuitas franceses comenzaron a enviar misioneros a Canadá en los 1600 con el fin de evangelizar a las tribus de la región, los iroqueses, algonquinos, hurones y mohawks. Esta misión era difícil porque las condiciones eran muy primitivas con temperaturas extremas y sólo unas pocas colonias esparcidas por los grandes bosques de América del Norte. Algunas de las tribus eran enemigos tradicionales, por lo que las interacciones con ellos, tuvo que llevarse a cabo con mucha sensibilidad. Los jesuitas siempre han sido bien conocidos por su erudición, y por lo tanto antes de salir de Europa se preparaban mediante el estudio de las lenguas y las culturas de los indígenas. Ellos luego trataban de hacer contacto con las tribus para predicar el Evangelio. Muchos de los hurones se convirtieron, al igual que algunos dentro de las otras tribus. Aun así, los misioneros estaban constantemente en peligro. Entre estos misioneros hubo dos sacerdotes franceses jesuitas, Juan de Brébeuf e Isaac Jogues y sus ocho compañeros laicos, todos de cuya memoria celebraremos mañana, lunes 19 de octubre. Tenemos la suerte de conocer de ellos porque reportaron de sus viajes. Su fe era muy fuerte y estaban plenamente convencidos de que podían ganar muchas almas para Cristo, pero al mismo tiempo no había nadie entre ellos que no esperaba sufrir tortura y probablemente la muerte por sus esfuerzos. De hecho, algunas de las tribus parecían especializarse en torturas horribles. Es una lección para todos los que fácilmente se desanimaban. A través de la persistencia de estos valientes misioneros, la mayoría de las tribus finalmente abandonaron sus prácticas paganas y abrazaron el cristianismo. Esta es la misma fe que profesamos hoy, una fe que habla a la gente de todo el mundo y que, en la plenitud del tiempo, unirá al mundo entero en uno solo.
