St. Joseph Catholic School Supports Local Businesses During COVID-19 Pandemic

Auburn, California - May 5, 2020 - St. Joseph Catholic School rallied the Cougar community to support a local favorite last Thursday evening. Families were encouraged to order from Old Town Pizza as a way to support the restaurant that has so often supported their school through dine-out fundraisers.

“This was a simple way to show that we support them during this challenging time,” said Jenny Oliver, principal at St. Joseph Catholic School. “We are thankful for the support they have shown our school and the Auburn community as a whole.”

The St. Joseph Catholic School community placed nearly 40 orders with Old Town Pizza, who had arranged for a special pick up tent in their parking lot for easy, minimal contact pick up. Delivery was also available.

“We would like to thank (St. Joseph Catholic School) for reaching out and setting up this event”, said Kelly Bewley, Co-owner and Events Coordinator at Old Town Pizza. “We are so appreciative of all the school families for supporting us! It’s times like these, when the community all comes together to support one another, that remind us why we love living in and doing business in the towns we are in.”

School families were happy to not only support the local favorite, who has been serving up a dining experience “A Good as Gold” since 1999, but also to take a break from cooking for a night!

“It was a no brainer for me,” said Ivy Nagel, a SJCS parent. “Support our favorite pizza spot and not have dishes to do. We even ordered extra for lunch the next day.”

This week the St. Joseph Catholic School community will be supporting Bagel Junction, another local spot that needs support from the Auburn community.
